Yesterday I got the promised check for student researchers from Dick (and a new ribbon, as you can see!). In my haste to send the check to Howard I paid scant attention to it. After I mailed it, it suddenly struck me that despite my knowledge that Dick has many interests and probably businesses, in addition to clients, the name printed on the check seems odd: Confucian Press. Does this, with your greater knowledge of things oriental, suggest anything to you? Offhand it does not to me.
